

Let Us All REJOICE

Modern musical settings of the Entrance and Communion Antiphons

Steve Angrisano, Sarah Hart, Curtis Stephan

INTRODUCTION

For at least as long as the time of the early psalm writers, composers have wanted to set their personal and communal worship experience to music. The Roman liturgy is replete with scripture, drawing from the early psalms, from the gospels, and from the Bible as a whole. Sometimes scripture in the liturgy is found in large chunks, such as in the responsorial psalms, and sometimes in small bits woven into prayers, such as in the Eucharistic prayers. All of this scripture in liturgy has long been embraced by composers as material for musical expression. One can find hundreds of settings of the responsorial psalms and gospel verses in particular.

The antiphons, on the other hand, have received somewhat less attention from composers, perhaps because of their brevity. Yet the antiphons are bits of scripture organized according to the liturgical calendar just as are the psalms and gospel acclamations from the Lectioary. Since the time of Pope Celestine I (432 AD), who is credited with instituting the tradition of singing the psalms of David antiphonally before the beginning of mass, antiphons have been an effective way for the people of God to enter into the mystery of Christ that the church is celebrating that day.

Let Us All Rejoice began with a simple goal: to set all of the Entrance and Communion antiphons from the Roman Missal to music. There are various existing antiphon resources, but one had yet to be written with two characteristics: 1) While many worshipers might be familiar with the treasury of Gregorian melodies and other chanted styles, there was not a contemporary or modern worship model for assemblies to sing and enter into these traditional texts sung by saints of old; 2) The musical settings should be easily sung by the people without the need for looking at music notation.

The Roman Missal antiphons are reprinted in almost all missals and hymnals for Catholic worship, yet if these propers are used at all, they are often only recited. The General Instruction of the Roman Missal is clear, however, about both the Entrance and Communion antiphons in liturgy: they are meant to be sung. The GIRM lists multiple sources for choosing music to be sung during Entrance and Communion, and multiple approaches to singing that music. One of those sources is “the antiphon from the Missal.” (cf. GIRM 48, 87)

At the beginning of the writing sessions, having considered various approaches to setting the antiphons to music, having studied the GIRM and observing that it is preferable that the people should sing the antiphons, not just the cantor and/or choir, Steve, Sarah, and Curtis settled on a few guidelines:

- Write common or similar melodies when practical, spread throughout the year, to help people begin to remember some melodies from one appearance to the next. (See the “Index of Melodic Groups” for a table of these common melodies.)
- Write melodies intuitive enough that people can sing them almost without having even heard them before.
- Write melodies interesting enough to allow for repetition without boredom, so as to fill the entire duration of the procession if desired.
- Stick to the text, with no unpredictable repetition of words, so that people can sing the text exactly as it appears in their worship aid.

Using the antiphons in liturgy

Because of the great flexibility offered in the GIRM for including music during both the Entrance and Communion processions, there is no one right way to use the antiphons. Here, then, are a few ideas for incorporating musical settings of the antiphons into the ritual action:

Entrance

- Sing the antiphon just before the Entrance procession begins—like an introit—then move into the processional song.
- Sing the antiphon as the Entrance processional song—repeat it as needed to fill the time until the priest reaches his chair.
- Sing it after the processional song, when the priest reaches his chair, before the sign of the cross.

Communion

- Start the antiphon after the priest speaks, “May the Blood of Christ keep me safe for eternal life,” while he consumes Holy Communion. Then move into the Communion processional song. If there is a lengthier period in which the eucharistic ministers are preparing to distribute Communion, the antiphon could be repeated to fill this time, waiting until the people begin receiving before beginning a processional song.
- Particularly if the Communion procession is short, sing the antiphon by itself and repeat as needed to fill the time of Communion distribution.
- Sing the antiphon as a reflection following Communion.

Daily Mass

The antiphons for the Sundays in Ordinary Time are also used on the weekdays of the following week, except when there is an obligatory saint’s day or feast. This means that the antiphons the assembly learned on Sunday can be used again and again during the week. When a feast displaces a Sunday, that displaced Sunday’s antiphon (rather than that of the feast) should be used during the following week. There are two cases where a feast will normally supplant the Sunday in Ordinary Time: The Baptism of the Lord replaces the First Sunday in Ordinary Time, and Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe (Christ the King) falls on the last Sunday of Ordinary Time. In these cases, the antiphons for the following week are included directly after those of their respective feasts.

Performance tips

- Some antiphons include a written-out intro, but for the others, play through the music once as an intro, then have the cantor or choir intone it, then the people repeat.
- If you will be repeating the antiphon several times to fill the duration of the procession, consider inserting an occasional instrumental pass. Repetition is good, but monotony is not.
- Most of the antiphons are arranged for three-part vocal harmonies. Consider these options:
 - Unison. Sometimes it is preferable to simply sing the melody, and usually it is preferable to sing only the melody at least the first time through.
 - Either the alto or tenor part may be combined individually with the melody for a two-part texture. If repeating several times, you might use Melody/Alto one pass, and Melody/Tenor another pass, then all three together.
 - For a four-part (SATB) texture, add basses to the melody an octave lower.
- Although written with the idea that the assembly can join without the need for notated music, these antiphons are available through One License (OneLicense.net) as melody/words (assembly editions) to reprint in worship aids.

As in all things, glorify God in your singing of the antiphons!

| On the last day of the festival, Jesus stood and cried out: If anyone is thirsty, let him come to me and drink, alleluia . . | 111 | The sparrow finds a home, and the swallow a nest for her young: by your altars, O Lord of hosts, my King and my God. Blessed are they who dwell in your house, for ever singing your praise | 74, 143 |
| One does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes forth from the mouth of God | 66 | The Word became flesh, and we have seen his glory | 18 |
| One of the soldiers opened his side with a lance, and at once there came forth blood and water | 121 | There is one thing I ask of the Lord, only this do I seek: to live in the house of the Lord all the days of my life . . . | 131 |
| Our God has appeared on the earth, and lived among us . . . | 24 | They ate and had their fill, and what they craved the Lord gave them; they were not disappointed in what they craved | 52 |
| Rejoice, O Daughter Sion; lift up praise, Daughter Jerusalem: Behold, your King will come, the Holy One and Savior of the world | 20 | They were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke of the marvels of God, alleluia | 114 |
| Remember your word to your servant, O Lord, by which you have given me hope. This is my comfort when I am brought low | 176 | This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased; listen to him | 70 |
| Say to the faint of heart: Be strong and do not fear. Behold, our God will come, and he will save us | 11 | This is the Body that will be given up for you; this is the Chalice of the new covenant in my Blood, says the Lord; do this, whenever you receive it, in memory of me | 86 |
| Since you are children of God, God has sent into your hearts the Spirit of his Son, the Spirit who cries out: Abba, Father | 116 | Though many, we are one bread, one body, for we all partake of the one Bread and one Chalice. | 180 |
| Taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed the man who seeks refuge in him | 140 | Thus says the Lord: Let whoever is thirsty come to me and drink. Streams of living water will flow from within the one who believes in me | 120 |
| The bread that I will give, says the Lord, is my flesh for the life of the world. | 156 | To all who would accept him, he gave the power to become children of God | 29 |
| The brightness of God illumined the holy city Jerusalem, and the nations will walk by its light | 31 | To be near God is my happiness, to place my hope in God the Lord | 197 |
| The chalice of blessing that we bless is a communion in the Blood of Christ; and the bread that we break is a sharing in the Body of the Lord | 171 | To you I call, for you will surely heed me, O God; turn your ear to me; hear my words | 61 |
| The Christ had to suffer and on the third day rise from the dead; in his name repentance and remission of sins must be preached to all the nations, alleluia. | 96 | We have come to know and to believe in the love that God has for us | 41 |
| The disciples recognized the Lord Jesus in the breaking of bread. | 195 | We have seen his star in the East, and have come with gifts to adore the Lord | 33 |
| The disciples recognized the Lord Jesus in the breaking of the bread, alleluia | 95 | We will ring out our joy at your saving help and exult in the name of our God | 188 |
| The earth is replete with the fruits of your work, O Lord; you bring forth bread from the earth and wine to cheer the heart | 161 | When the Lord appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. | 183 |
| The eyes of all look to you, Lord, and you give them their food in due season | 134 | Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, says the Lord, and I will raise him up on the last day . . | 162 |
| The glory of the Lord will be revealed, and all flesh will see the salvation of our God | 15 | Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood remains in me and I in him, says the Lord. | 118, 144 |
| The Good Shepherd has risen, who laid down his life for his sheep and willingly died for his flock, alleluia . . . | 99 | With the Lord there is mercy; in him is plentiful redemption | 158 |
| The Lord anointed my eyes: I went, I washed, I saw and I believed in God | 76 | With you, O Lord, is the fountain of life, and in your light we see light | 37 |
| The Lord has cast down the mighty from their thrones, and has lifted up the lowly | 4 | You have given us, O Lord, bread from heaven, endowed with all delights and sweetness in every taste. | 152 |
| The Lord is good to those who hope in him, to the soul that seeks him | 179 | You have laid down your precepts to be carefully kept; may my ways be firm in keeping your statutes. | 173 |
| The Lord is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer; my God is my saving strength | 128 | You have prepared a table before me, and how precious is the chalice that quenches my thirst | 40 |
| The Lord is my shepherd; there is nothing I shall want. Fresh and green are the pastures where he gives me repose, near restful waters he leads me | 194 | You must rejoice, my son, for your brother was dead and has come to life; he was lost and is found. | 77 |
| | | You will show me the path of life, the fullness of joy in your presence, O Lord. | 191 |
